UNITING THE GENERATIONS IN MISSION

...Then they'll be mature in this oneness, and give the godless world evidence that you've sent me and loved them in the same way you've loved me. -John 17:23^{MSG}

From My Heart to Yours

By Dr. Scott Weimer, Senior Pastor

As you review the February newsletter, you will notice that our congregational focus is most certainly the 55th Annual NACP Mission Conference. The two keynote guest speakers for the conference are truly outstanding. Jonathan Reckford, C.E.O. of Habitat for Humanity, is one of the most sought-after speakers in the country. What a privilege to have him as our kick-off speaker on February 12 in the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. worship services. Please consider right now whom you will invite to hear about some of the most significant mission work being done through Habitat around the world in the name of Christ!

On February 19, Lauren Winner will speak in all three worship services in the Sanctuary (9 a.m., 11 a.m., 7 p.m.). Lauren is a celebrated Christian author and currently teaches at Duke Divinity School. She has been especially effective over the past decade in speaking about matters of authentic faith in ways that reach the minds and hearts of people who sometimes struggle to believe. Lauren's most recent book, Still, will be released just prior to the mission conference. Winner asks what happens in the "stillness" that follows one's initial exhilaration of becoming a follower of Christ. Out of such prayerful reflection comes direction for service and mission.

On the concluding Sunday of the conference, February 25, it will be my privilege to cast a fresh vision for the ways that a local church like NACP can make a significant difference for the Kingdom of Christ, through the focus of our resources on ministries where God is already actively at work in Atlanta and around the world! Please join us for all three services!

Grace and peace,

Greeters Needed on Sunday Mornings

Have you been welcomed by a friendly greeter as you entered North Avenue before a service in recent months? Radical Hospitality is one of North Avenue's core values, and we have a need for others with the gift of hospitality. If you are able to serve in this way for about an hour once a month, please contact Guy Hudgins at hudgin_g@bellsouth.net or Janie Hicks at ext. 206, or janie@napc.org.

Update Your Contact Information! Does the church have your correct e-mail, phone, and address contact information? Update your info by contacting Kay Carlson at kay@napc.org or ext. 213.

Apply to the 2012 Honduras Mission Trip

Honduras applications are due on February 12. Jessica Dart (jessica@napc.org) and Don Handell (dhandell@bellsouth.net) have applications which can be returned to Don or Jessica or dropped off in the missions mailbox in the copy room. A $300 deposit is required. The first team meeting will be on February 26 at 12 p.m. in Room 316.

55 YEARS IN THE MAKING

World Missions Conference 1965

Acts of Worship 2011

International Class 1983

World Missions Conference 1986

“Interest in Missions is growing. It will increase. It grows and will continue to do so, because people are losing confidence in human resources alone as the answer to our problems. Missions is the bearer of the supernatural Gospel by which lives are changed... If you are troubled about yourself or about your world, come and experience a cross-section of the church's life as it moves out into our world in Missions. You will be encouraged and challenged to have a larger part in this necessary work.” This is a quote from Dr. Vernon S. Broyles, Jr., the senior pastor of NAPC in 1958. It was printed on the front of the bulletin the week of the first-ever North Avenue Missions Conference. This quote could very easily have been penned by someone thinking about the need for missions today. In 1958 there was a felt need for more missions, and North Avenue has continued to feel that need every year since.

For 55 years, North Avenue Presbyterian Church has hosted a Missions Conference. The format the first year called for four days of lunchtime and evening services, with reports from missionaries and a message on the importance of missions. It also involved an effort to raise money to support missions. In the years following, the format of the event has changed many times. There were house meetings, guest lectures, dramas, musical performances and concerts, special Sunday School classes, luncheons, and even cottage prayer meetings. Every year there was an effort to raise mission support. Many in our congregation now speak of their memories of the old mission thermometer which would show the progress of the fundraising efforts. If the thermometer didn't hit its red colored mark at the top, the appeal was made until NAPC hit its goal.

“Missions continues to be one of the ways that we can respond to the issues that trouble us.”

Today we may not have a giant thermometer in the Sanctuary, but we certainly still spend great energy asking for the missions pledge. It's energy well spent. NAPC supports a considerable amount of amazing mission work inside and outside our walls and around the world.

When one thinks about how NAPC is still responding to the thoughts of Dr. Broyles, it doesn't take long to come up with ways that we are, as a community of faith, looking to our mission work and partners to solve the world's problems. We have partnered with local children's organizations to help with education. We've helped with tutoring, creative educational programs, and daily early childhood development opportunities to give kids in our community a chance at long term success. We've helped support local homeless organizations with job training, hygiene kits, meals, and other daily needs. We have missionaries around the world working with health education to alleviate some of the health challenges facing majority world populations. We've supported missionaries who, in closed countries, are offering opportunities to encounter the Gospel and Christianity despite the threat of persecution. We've supported hospitality to visiting scholars from around the world that has led to new converts to the faith and better relationships between cultures. We've continued to lead the fight against the commercial sexual exploitation of young girls in our community.

The problems Dr. Broyles was referring to are still around today. Technology has changed, but people and the presence of sin in our world have remained the same. Missions continues to be one of the ways that we can respond to the issues that trouble us. This year we welcome two guest speakers to our mission conference who will speak into such issues. Habitat for Humanity CEO Jonathan Reckford will bring us hope about responding to humanitarian issues of shelter and other basic human needs in the communities Habitat impacts around the globe. Lauren Winner will tell us about how God speaks to each of us in our daily struggle to live out our faith.

The North Avenue Missions Ministry encourages each of you to invite friends and family to attend the mission conference events this year as we continue to believe that God will work through our desire to serve in mission to deliver "the supernatural Gospel by which lives are changed." -Phil Cobb

The citizens of the majority world live a very different life from most United States citizens.
Come find out more about how everyone else lives.

Have you ever risked losing your job, your family, or your freedom in order to come to church? On your way to church did you hide your Bible or make sure the police weren't following you? Did you ask your minister to teach for hours on end because you were so hungry for God's word?

Probably not.

These scenarios are a reality for many believers in parts of the world where Christians are persecuted. Be on the look out for details about an underground church simulation on February 24.

OASIS IN THE DESERT

Friday, March 23, 5:30 p.m. – Saturday, March 24, 4:30 p.m.
Harrington Center, Columbia Theological Seminary in Decatur, Georgia

Do you feel restless or dry in your spirit? Are the demands of your outer life growing at the expense of your inner life? Would you like to discover a rhythm of prayer amid the busyness of life?

Then come away for a quiet time with God, and find rest and nourishment for your soul... Designed for and led by the men and women of North Avenue, this contemplative prayer retreat will provide time for teaching from Scripture, solitude and silence, small group sharing, and community worship. It is offered by the Spiritual Formation community of North Avenue's Adult Discipleship Team.

You may commute from home or stay at the Harrington Center overnight. Please plan to participate in all sessions. A $30 registration includes dinner, breakfast, lunch, and program expenses. Registration plus lodging for a single occupancy room is $79 and $62 for a double occupancy room. Please send your check (payable to NAPC) to Kay Carlson, NAPC, 607 Peachtree Street NE, Atlanta, GA 30308. You may register online at www.napc.org/oasis. To make inquiries, please call or e-mail Kay at ext. 213 or kay@napc.org. Due to space constraints, registration may be limited.

What's In a Name?

Get to Know the NAPC Young Adult Bible Study

Let's break it down. First: "NAPC". I started visiting this church in January 2010. The Sunday morning services were enjoyable, and I felt like it was the kind of place I could belong and grow. Nonetheless, I wasn't holding myself accountable to be here. Maybe it was the bad habit I developed of seldom going to church when I lived on campus. But when I started in with this group that summer, it actually became easier for me to make more time for God. It felt like my spiritual side had been dusted off. Joining this group was, for me, a great way to engage the larger community here.

Next, "Young Adult". Without defining that term, most of us are in college, post-college/early career or graduate students. And if you're one of those, you know it can seem isolating at times. When I started graduate school, I had to basically start over socially.

Being able to use that opportunity to surround myself with supportive individuals was certainly a blessing.

Finally, "Bible Study". Don't worry: no 10-page reports. But we try to dive in to whatever we're reading, and we trade responsibilities for leading on the material we examine each week. Preparing some discussion points for a few passages here and there has been deeply instructive for me in listening to God's message. Although there are many mysteries, I feel much more prepared to read Scripture than I did even a year ago.

In short, if you want to talk about the Word with some cool cats, I hope that you'll visit us!
-Mitch Costley
